Biography of Lawrence Rice

Retired Chief Warrant Officer with the United States (U.S.) Army Criminal Investigation Division (CID), with 20-plus years of military service. Seventeen of these years were dedicated to law enforcement and criminal intelligence. Twenty-plus additional years of experience as a government contractor supporting U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) intelligence operations. Areas of expertise include criminal and internal investigations, counterintelligence operations, human intelligence collection, strategic intelligence analysis (also known as critical thinking), open-source intelligence (OSINT) research and analysis, link analysis, pattern analysis, analysis of competing hypothesis, strategic debriefing, interviewing and interrogation techniques, voice stress analysis, intelligence collection management and, elicitation/recruitment and management of sources.

Lawrence became a voice stress examiner in August 2003, while working as a strategic debriefer for U.S. Southern Command. Lawrence has since conducted voice stress exams throughout the DoD area of operations in Iraq, Afghanistan, United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, and Jordan. As an instructor and Military/Cultural Advisor with VIPRE Technology Group, Lawrence has continued to bring the benefits of voice stress analysis to both law enforcement and intelligence agencies since September 2006.
